Awareness is goal during April Earthquake Preparedness Month

California is “earthquake country,” and April has been proclaimed “Earthquake Preparedness Month” for California. The goal of the Monterey County Emergency Services is to make all residents aware of the potential danger to life and property posed by earthquakes and the need for basic earthquake preparedness and personal emergency planning.

Several major active seismic faults are located in or near Monterey County. Consequently, the potential for a damaging earthquake in our area is real.

Earthquake Precautions

- + If an earthquake occurs, remain calm, and stay where you are.

- + If you are indoors, take cover and remain under a solid object such as a desk, table, or bench, against an inside wall or in a wood-framed doorway, and hold on. Stay away from glass, windows, outside doors or walls, and anything that could fall and hurt you, such as lighting, furniture, or fixtures.

- + If you are indoors, do not rush outside to “safety.” Exterior building damage may have occurred, and falling debris could injure or kill as you exit the building, and before you reach the safety of open areas.

- + If you are outdoors, stay there. Move away from buildings, street lights, and utility wires.

- + Do not be surprised if electricity goes out or if sprinkler systems, fire, and burglar alarms activate.

- + Be prepared for aftershocks, which can occur within 48 hours or more after the initial shock.

- + Do not use candles, matches or open flames during or after an earthquake because of possible gas leaks.

Post-Earthquake Actions

- + Check for injuries. Render first aid as appropriate. Do not attempt to move seriously injured persons. Call for help immediately.

- + Stay out of severely damaged buildings. Return to your home only when authorities have said it is safe.

- + Visually inspect utility lines, chimneys, and appliances for damage. If you smell gas, open windows and shut off the main gas valve. Leave the building and report the leak immediately. Never search for a gas leak with a match. Do not use electrical switches or appliances if gas leaks are suspected. Shut off electrical power at the main box. If an earthquake strikes, “Duck, Cover, and Hold” may save your life. For information on how to improve your personal safety during an earthquake, contact your Monterey County Office of Emergency Services at 755-5158.

April: Child Abuse Prevention Month

Investigator discusses child abuse causes, intervention

Editor's Note: This is the second of a two-part article on child abuse issues.

By Investigator Dedra Thomas

Garrison Juvenile Violence Investigator

Children who are victims of abuse can suffer physically – abuse and neglect can lead to painful injuries and serious medical problems. In severe cases, the damage can lead to permanent disability, mental retardation, or even death.

Children can suffer emotionally, too – children depend on adults for security, acceptance and guidance. When adults harm or neglect them, their world becomes uncertain and frightening. The emotional effects of abuse can last a lifetime. Results can include:

Low self-esteem – children naturally think that adults are always correct. So, abused children may grow up believing they are bad and deserving of abuse.

Problems with feelings – emotional damage from abuse can stunt a child's emotional growth. Later in life, the child may be unable to show his or her feelings – or to understand others feelings.

Problems with relationships – poor emotional development and lack of trust can make meaningful relationships difficult.

Victims of child abuse should seek help – no matter how long ago the abuse occurred.

Prevention and Intervention

The basic goal of the prevention of child abuse and neglect is to reduce or eliminate the needless suffering that many children experience daily in California and across the nation. In most instances, the suffering experienced by the children is also experienced by their families.

Child abuse and neglect in the family is largely an intergenerational problem. In addressing the needs of victims of abuse and neglect, it is important to focus on the need for services for families at risk of becoming abusive or neglectful as well as those families reported for abuse and neglect.

According to the Office of the Attorney General, "primary prevention" may be defined as community education which enhances the general well-being of children and their families. "Secondary prevention" may be defined as those services designed to identify and assist high risk families to prevent abuse or neglect. "Tertiary prevention" may be defined as intervention or treatment services to assist a family in which abuse or neglect has already occurred to prevent further abuse or neglect.

Community Role in Reporting Child Abuse

Community members have an important role in protecting children from abuse and neglect. Individuals must recognize that child abuse is a community or neighborhood problem which can be prevented if we involve ourselves through various types of individual, neighborhood, or community action.

The life of a child may be saved if community members become involved and report cases of suspected child abuse. Fear of involvement has resulted in violent family tragedies in which the neighbors reported that they knew what was going on, but declined to get involved. Involvement does not mean physical intervention or snooping on your neighbor – it simply means not ignoring the obvious.

If maltreatment of a child is suspected, a report should be made so that a qualified and experienced person can investigate the situation. To report suspected child abuse, contact:

The police or county sheriff's department.

The county child welfare department.

Other names for this may include family and children services department or department of public social services.

The county juvenile probation department.

Hotlines such as the National Child Abuse Hotline: 1-800-422-4453.

Reports may be made to the above agencies anonymously. For purposes of investigation and follow-up, however, it is preferred that the name and address of such a reporter be volunteered. The important thing is the immediate protection of the child.

In any event, all names are confidential and can be released only by a court order to designated persons regardless of whether the reported is required by law to report.

Remember, to report a suspected or known incident of child abuse occurring on this installation, including the Defense Language Institute/Foreign Language Center, call Presidio of Monterey Police Department at 242-7851 or 242-7852, or call me, Investigator Dedra Thomas, at 242-7871.

Top NCOs share advice for career progression

WASHINGTON — Looking for success in the military? Who better to ask for advice than the service members who rose through the ranks from E-nothings to become their services' top enlisted advisers?

That's exactly what Janet Langhart Cohen, wife of Defense Secretary William Cohen, recently did during interviews for the Armed Forces Radio and Television Service. Here's what the military's top noncommissioned officers told her:

Volunteer for the hard jobs. "I've never looked for a particular job, and I always volunteered for the hard jobs," said Sergeant Major of the Marine Corps Lewis Lee. It's a formula that's worked for him and that he recommends to other Marines. "I've always been able to go and do whatever had to be done when it had to be done," he said.

Develop your leadership skills. Sergeant Major of the Army Robert Hall said working as a drill sergeant early in his career gave him a chance to discover and develop his leadership abilities. It also got him servicewide recognition when he was named Army Drill Sergeant of the Year in 1979.

Nurture junior service members. "We don't recruit master chiefs; we grow master chiefs, and it takes us awhile to do that," said Master Chief Petty Officer of the Navy James Herdt. He said he's built his career with the recognition that today's youngest men and women in uniform will become tomorrow's military leaders.

Look out for your people. "Leadership is pretty simple," said Sergeant Major of the Army Robert Hall. He defined the mantra for leadership that's guided his career: "just taking care of soldiers and soldiers' families and everything that entails."

Identify your goals and work toward them. Master Chief of the Coast Guard Vincent Patton said he knew from his earliest days in the military that he wanted to rise to become the Coast Guard's master chief. He said he loved the idea of "being a direct representative to the people in the field and a link to the commandant of the Coast Guard," so he "became a student of the job," watching his predecessors and learning from them.

Don't waste time and energy worrying about the next assignment. Master Chief Petty Officer of the Navy James Herdt tells service members to "just concentrate on the work you do day to day." He advises, "Try to be the best sailor you can be. Look for the good in people. Look for the good in the work you do, and if you do that, the follow-on assignments have a way of taking care of themselves."

Build on adversity. Sergeant Major of the Marine Corps Lewis Lee grew up under tough circumstances. He said facing the challenges and difficulties the military presented him — including a tour in Vietnam, where he was wounded twice and had to be medically evacuated — helped him develop the "natural leader" within. "I became a leader without ever realizing I was becoming a leader," he said.

Broaden your experience base. Master Chief Petty Officer of the Navy James Herdt said his serving both in the submarine force and on aircraft carriers gave him "a very broad background from which to draw experience" as he climbed the ranks.

Get as much education as you can. Master Chief of the Coast Guard Vincent Patton said he "got hooked on" correspondence courses while at sea when he first entered the Coast Guard. He continued pursuing his education throughout his career, earning bachelor's, master's and doctoral degrees and always "maxing out" the points awarded for education by promotion boards.

Respect and work within the military command structure. "If you take a look at the work we do, you can't have everyone in charge. Battle brings confusion," said Master Chief Petty Officer of the Navy James Herdt. He tells his sailors that the strength of the military is "the discipline and teamwork and everyone understanding the hierarchy."

Take pride in your people's success. Chief Master Sergeant of the Air Force Eric Benken said the biggest reward of his job is the recognition that "we produce winners." He takes training and mentoring seriously, noting that "It's incredible what we're able to do with young people who have zero experience." (Courtesy of American Forces Press Service)

TRICARE Standard users can now use a new toll free phone number to help callers find a medical provider that is TRICARE-certified.

The toll free phone numbers are Northern California: (877) 773-5451; Southern California and Yuma, Ariz.: (877) 773-5450.

A representative will ask callers what medical services they are looking for and their zip code. Once they have this information, they can look for a TRICARE-certified provider close by that fits the callers' needs.

A TRICARE-certified provider is a hospital, clinic, doctor or other health care professional who meets TRICARE regulations and can provide care. When individuals visit TRICARE-certified providers, they receive quality care from people who understand the billing rules of TRICARE. This is very important because a provider must be TRICARE-certified in order for TRICARE to pay for any part of the care.

With the Provider Locator Line, TRICARE Standard users now have a quick and easy way to find doctors and other medical specialists in their area. For additional information about this free service, call the Provider Locator Line or visit the local TRICARE Service Center or Beneficiary Service Office. Commissary expands benefits for Reservists, gray-area retirees

By Bonnie Powell

Defense Commissary Agency Eastern Region Public Affairs

FORT LEE, Va. — Reservists' Commissary Privilege Cards are their ticket to shopping in military commissaries.

Congress voted last fall to double the number of visits reservists, National Guard, and gray-area retirees can make to the commissary, from 12 to 24. But to take advantage of the increase, reserve members still need the Commissary Privilege Card to get in the door. Guard and Reserve units issue the cards to their members.

The expanded commissary benefit is also available to Reserve retirees who are not yet 60 years old, but will be eligible for retired pay when they hit that magic number. The privilege also applies to family members of Reserve and retired Reserve personnel.

"Service in the National Guard and Reserve is now more challenging and more difficult than ever before," said Charles L. Cragin, acting assistant secretary of Defense for Reserve Affairs. "Doubling the commissary access for reservists and their families helps to level the playing field and improve their quality of life."

John Gannon, a retired sergeant major who is a key volunteer with reserve and family support groups, agrees 100 percent. During his travels, Gannon talks to thousands of Reservists and many of them don't understand the significant money they can save at the commissary.

"How do you know you can't save money if you don't go?" he asks them. "It's a major benefit to Reservists," he said. "They might not see it now, but if they don't start using it now, one day they will wake up and their biggest benefit will be gone."

For 1999, the services indicate they will issue two 12-visit cards to authorized Reserve and Retired Reserve members. Next year, the card will be revised to contain 24 blocks.

To shop the commissary, Reservists or immediate family need a valid identification card and a current Commissary Privilege Card that entitles them to 24 shopping days. Cards, which are usually obtained from the Reserve/Guard unit administrator, are stamped or initialed at each store visit. During active duty, Reserve and Guard personnel can visit the commissary as many times as they wish and do not have to get their card initialed.

Gray-area reserve retirees (younger than 60) usually get their cards by mail, but "judging from some of the phone calls I've gotten, it's not automatic," said Lt. Col. Terry Jones, Office of the Assistant Secretary of Defense for Reserve Affairs.

Retirees who want to get into the system and obtain a card by mail should contact their regional personnel support team. Reservists needing a Commissary Privilege Card should contact their unit administrator or call: Army Reserve, 1-800-325-1869; Navy Reserve, 1-800-535-2699 ext. 5500 or (504) 678-5500; Marine Corps Reserve, (703) 784-9317; Air Force Reserve, 1-800-525-0102, extension 227. Explanation of classified ad policy

The following information is provided to explain and clarify policy for individuals who would like to publish classified ads in POM-Mart.

Military members, retirees and Department of Defense civilian employees with valid identification cards are authorized to place classified ads in the Community News.

To place an ad in the Community News, complete the form on the back page of the Community News and deliver it to the Public Affairs Office, Building 614, Room 142, Presidio of Monterey, 93944. Ads may also be sent via e-mail to the editor at wright@pom-emh1.army.mil. Individuals should be sure to include all information requested on the form, including the category of the ad.

Daytime work telephone numbers are for use by Community News staff only; they will not be listed in ads. Individuals may place up to three ads in different categories per issue. Each ad should not exceed 35 words; itemized property for sale should be valued at least $10.

The Community News staff will make every effort to publish ads accurately, but we reserve the right to edit ads to meet readability, format and space requirements. Report typographical errors to the editor, and they will be corrected as early as possible.

Acceptable classified ads include items in the categories of Autos; Motorcycles; Trucks, Vans, Sport, RVs; Wanted; Sports Equipment; Entertainment, Music Items; Computers and Accessories; Lost and Found; Miscellaneous; Pets or Household Items. Items must be for one-time sale or for free – not for a profit-sharing venture of multiple items.

Classified ads for businesses, rentals, free information, help for hire or tutoring, or illegal items are not authorized. Each ad will be published in three consecutive issues unless it is renewed or cancelled.

The date the ad was first published is printed in parentheses following each ad. For example, ads dated (04-09) will continue to run through the May 7 issue. Classified ads may be renewed or cancelled by phone; however, new ads, additions or major changes to ads must be done in writing before the Wednesday deadline for the next issue, generally a week and a half prior to publication. When calling in reference to an ad, be sure to identify the category, first few words of the ad, phone number as printed and the date following the ad.

Deadline for the May 7 issue is Wednesday; deadline for the May 21 issue is May 12.

Please refer questions concerning this policy to the editor of the Community News at the Public Affairs Office, at 242-5104 or 242-6426.
